

ERO DEIGNAN A FUTURE ADMIRAL.

He Was with Hobson in the Merrimac and His Bravery Will Be Rewarded.

AT WALDORF LAST NIGHT.

He Blushingly Tells How 200 Pretty Girls of Stewart, Iowa, Kissed Him.

HE'S A BOATSWAIN'S MATE NOW.

If He Had Not Been Incognito the Waldorf Girls Might Have Kissed Him, Too.

Having survived the fervid kisses of the Stewart, Iowa, girls, Osborne W. Deignan, who was with Hobson in the Merrimac, is now a boatswain's mate on the New York Navy Yard.

Osborne W. Deignan, a Merrimac Hero.

He was killed by two hundred girls at Stewart, Iowa, and, fresh and rosy, dined at the Waldorf last night. His friends propose to send him to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and he may become an admiral. The picture shows him in the "toes" he wore when on the Merrimac.

who was one of those who helped Hobson to sink the Merrimac in the entrance to Santiago Harbor, died last night at the Waldorf.

Deignan's prospects since the girls kissed him are not better than were those of Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., when he "polished off the handle of the big front door" town is going to send Deignan to Annapolis and make an admiral of him. He has been killed, when, flattered and kissed ever since that little affair at Santiago, and yet he is as simple and unassuming as when he was a plain sailor on the flagship New York.

He reported for duty on Saturday night to Captain Giles Eaton, of the auxiliary cruiser Rosolito, which is now lying at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. As an additional recognition of his gallant conduct on the Merrimac he will receive an extra leave of thirty days, beginning next Wednesday. Yesterday he obtained leave to visit friends in New York, one of whom had invited him to dine at the Waldorf-Astoria.

"The man who had been kissed by 200 of the prettiest girls in Iowa without flinching, took the Waldorf-Astoria quite easily. Had he not taken the precaution to travel incognito, he might have been killed by the beautiful Waldorf girls, for this youthful chief Deignan's mate is an extremely handsome fellow."

"It is a very true," he was asked, while the Waldorf-Astoria band played on, "that you were kissed by 200 girls without any letup when you reached your home in Stewart, Iowa?"

"Yes," said he, "that's no fake. I guess there were 200 of them or more. It was a different kind of kissing, but, after that first half dozen kisses, I began to take an interest in my work, and after that I'd have kissed all my duty."

"I'm simply complimenting you on the fact that you haven't got the swelled head. Now, why is it that you haven't got it?"

"I simply did my duty," said Deignan modestly, "and I always expect to do it when the opportunity offers."

"And you stand ready to kiss the girls?"

Deignan was promoted to be chief boatswain's mate in recognition of his gallant conduct in the Merrimac affair, but, of course, he can't attain a much higher grade under present conditions. For this reason the people of his native State propose to give $2,000 to send him to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. In the event of his successful graduation there will be nothing to prevent his becoming an admiral.

BRITISH TRADE IN DANGER.

Beresford Says Russian Encroachments in the East Are a "Grave Danger."

Shanghai, Nov. 20.—Rear-Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, Member of Parliament for York, who is visiting China in the interests of the British Associated Chambers of Commerce, in the course of a speech here last evening, dwelt upon the "grave dangers threatening British commerce so long as the dominant military position of Russia and the active condition of China are allowed to continue."

He insisted upon the necessity of a "firm policy," which should include the organization of a thoroughly equipped Chinese army and a commercial alliance with the United States, Germany and Japan in order to preserve China's integrity and maintain the "open door."

McCadden Memorial Dedicated.
The new McCadden memorial building in Berry street, Brooklyn, a gift from Mrs. Anna Eliza Walsh to the Church of St. Peter and Paul in memory of her dead brother, Henry McCadden, was dedicated last night by Bishop McDonough, of Brooklyn. The building cost more than $100,000.

The new McCadden memorial building in Berry street, Brooklyn.

morning, the Rev. Dr. J. R. Nutting, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church of Salt Lake City, played on "The True Inwardness of Mormonism." He discussed Mormonism, the belief and its foundations and its effect on politics in Utah. Then he said: "Mormonism never was more aggressive than to-day; never more inimical to the best interests of humanity."

"The official report last April showed 1,700 elders at work outside of Utah propagating the evil system, 1,800 of whom were in the United States. Quite a number of these have their headquarters in Brooklyn, where a house-to-house proselyting canvass is being made."

The preacher closed with an appeal to all to be on their guard against fallacies in religion, and to sustain the work of Christ among their fellow human beings by prayer and every other means possible.

KIDNAPPED AT CHURCH DOOR.

A Father Steals His Child from Wife He Had Deserted.

A bold attempt was made last night in front of St. Mary's Church, at Court and Lequeur streets, Brooklyn, to kidnap two children. The attempt was half successful, in that one child was taken away. The other escaped.

James Kerrigan, a candy maker, who is employed at No. 54 Barclay street, and is said to live at No. 218 Park avenue, Hoboken, and Jessie Shaw, a woman for whom Kerrigan's wife says she was deserted, were the kidnappers. The child abducted was Jerome Kerrigan, ten years old.

Mrs. Kerrigan was a Miss Denison, the daughter of George Denison, a wealthy citizen of Hoboken, who lives at No. 149 South Eighth street, when she met Kerrigan, fourteen years ago. Kerrigan and his wife traveled for eight years, the man conducting candy stands at fairs and exhibitions. In Chicago at the World's Fair he met Miss Shaw and after a courtship of six months and a year he married her and they had three children.

Mrs. Kerrigan came to Brooklyn and was employed as a nurse in the Maribush Hospital. Two of the children, Joyce, a girl, aged twelve, and Jerome, she placed in institutions. The other child, Adele, aged five, she kept with her. She saw and heard nothing from her husband until six weeks ago, when he appeared in Brooklyn and succeeded in getting the boy out of the institution. He had possession of the little fellow for three weeks, at No. 88 Perry street, in this city, when Mrs. Kerrigan succeeded in stealing him back again.

After finding that her husband knew her whereabouts, Mrs. Kerrigan kept all her children, closely at her home, at No. 149 West Ninth street. Last night she allowed them to go to church in the care of a girl eighteen years old, the daughter of a neighbor. The kidnapping was done as the congregation filed from the church, the Shaw woman, grasping the boy and Kerrigan attempted to get the little girl. Mrs. Shaw succeeded in dragging the boy to a street car and getting away with him. The police of this city and Hooker are looking for Kerrigan and the woman.

MORMONS BUSY IN BROOKLYN.

Pastor Nutting Says Elders Are Proselyting from House to House.

At the New England Congregational Church, in South Ninth street, yesterday

At the New England Congregational Church, in South Ninth street, yesterday

There Amadoc Wounded His Own Pal and Shot and Killed the Peacemaker.

POLICE RESCUE THE SLAYER.

He and His Friend Had Gone to Guest's Wedding Feast to Kill a Guest, Who Escaped.

Angelina Gemmell's wedding night will always be one of horrible memory to her, for the marriage feast was broken up by two men who came to murder a third, and instead killed one who tried to act as peacemaker. The bride of a few hours saw this murder committed on the top floor of the three-story apartment house, No. 71 Adams street, Hoboken.

Giovanni Gusto, a well to do fruit dealer, and the pretty Angelina, who is just twenty-two years old, were married yesterday and last night held a wedding feast in the Adams street apartments. Gusto had hired up for their home, Antonio Sabbatelli, a wealthy produce dealer, who owned the house, was a guest at the feast. He lived with his wife on the floor below that of the young couple.

The wedding festival was at its height about 9 o'clock when there entered two unbidden guests, Vincenzo Borromeo, of No. 70 Mott street, and Antonio Amadoc, eighteen years old, of No. 81 Mulberry street, New York. They knew that Pasquale Ercole, a brother-in-law of Sabbatelli was at the feast, and came to kill him as the result of a grudge of long standing. Ercole saw them enter and ran downstairs to the apartments of his brother-in-law and hid. Borromeo and Amadoc in searching the Gusto apartments for him, created such an uproar that Sabbatelli besought them to keep quiet. There was a quarrel, and soon Sabbatelli, Borromeo and Amadoc were in the hall fighting hard. The bride and bridegroom and their guests saw the two men as they reached the first floor hall draw revolvers and begin shooting. Sabbatelli, as he ran to the street, returned the fire, sending two shots at Borromeo, who was shot twice in the arm by Amadoc, who mistook him for the peacemaker. Borromeo fell to the sidewalk as Sabbatelli dashed across the street and fell dead, shot through the heart by Amadoc. The murderer fled, pursued by Quist, his bride and the wedding guests. During the fusillade Heinrich Peters, of West Hoboken, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Great Singers to Aid a Home.

A concert will be given in aid of the Sunnyside Day Nursery in the Metropolitan Opera House on Friday evening. Among the singers who will sing are: Miss Melba, Miss Gade, Signor Pandolfi and Signor Bonadei will sing. There is a notable list of patronesses. The scale of prices for the concert is as follows: Parlor (three rows), $2.50; dress circle (three rows), $1.50; balcony, $1.

Mrs. Egan to Be Arraigned.

Mrs. Egan, who shot and killed her husband, Michael Egan, in their apartments at No. 129 Washington street, Hoboken, Saturday night, will be arraigned before Recorder Stanton this afternoon. She says the shooting was accidental, and the police have not been able to find anything which discredits her story.

HOW RULERS OF THE WORLD WORSHIPPED.

Continued from First Page.

OSCAR II. AND FAMILY.
TEXT: From Matthew XXV.
(Copyright, 1898, by W. R. Hearst.)
Special Cable Dispatch.

Oscar II. of Sweden.

holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. And before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats."

Stockholm, Nov. 20.—King Oscar II. and the royal family attended the palace church. Court pastor Maxer preached. He took his text from 25th chapter of Matthew, the subject being the last judgment.

"When the son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. And before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats."

Carlos kept the Sabbath. (Copyright, 1898, by W. R. Hearst.)
Special Cable Dispatch.

Lisbon, Nov. 20.—Carlos attended private mass in the royal chapel. There was no sermon.

HUMBERT A WORSHIPPER.
Special Cable Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1898, by W. R. Hearst.)

Rome, Nov. 20.—King Humbert, with the royal family, attended mass at the private chapel. There was no sermon.

M'KINLEY STAYED AT HOME.
Washington, Nov. 20.—President McKinley did not attend divine worship to-day.

GUEST SLAIN AT WEDDING FEAST.

Sabbatelli Had Tried to Quiet Two Men Bent on Murder.

FOUGHT TO THE STREET.

There Amadoc Wounded His Own Pal and Shot and Killed the Peacemaker.

POLICE RESCUE THE SLAYER.

He and His Friend Had Gone to Guest's Wedding Feast to Kill a Guest, Who Escaped.

Angelina Gemmell's wedding night will always be one of horrible memory to her, for the marriage feast was broken up by two men who came to murder a third, and instead killed one who tried to act as peacemaker. The bride of a few hours saw this murder committed on the top floor of the three-story apartment house, No. 71 Adams street, Hoboken.

Giovanni Gusto, a well to do fruit dealer, and the pretty Angelina, who is just twenty-two years old, were married yesterday and last night held a wedding feast in the Adams street apartments. Gusto had hired up for their home, Antonio Sabbatelli, a wealthy produce dealer, who owned the house, was a guest at the feast. He lived with his wife on the floor below that of the young couple.

The wedding festival was at its height about 9 o'clock when there entered two unbidden guests, Vincenzo Borromeo, of No. 70 Mott street, and Antonio Amadoc, eighteen years old, of No. 81 Mulberry street, New York. They knew that Pasquale Ercole, a brother-in-law of Sabbatelli was at the feast, and came to kill him as the result of a grudge of long standing. Ercole saw them enter and ran downstairs to the apartments of his brother-in-law and hid. Borromeo and Amadoc in searching the Gusto apartments for him, created such an uproar that Sabbatelli besought them to keep quiet. There was a quarrel, and soon Sabbatelli, Borromeo and Amadoc were in the hall fighting hard. The bride and bridegroom and their guests saw the two men as they reached the first floor hall draw revolvers and begin shooting. Sabbatelli, as he ran to the street, returned the fire, sending two shots at Borromeo, who was shot twice in the arm by Amadoc, who mistook him for the peacemaker. Borromeo fell to the sidewalk as Sabbatelli dashed across the street and fell dead, shot through the heart by Amadoc. The murderer fled, pursued by Quist, his bride and the wedding guests. During the fusillade Heinrich Peters, of West Hoboken, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

PROXY LOVE-MAKING FAILS.

Gatti Tries It and Gets a Wife Who Will Not Live with Him.

Raymond Gatti made love by proxy and is sorry for it. Two months ago he de-

There Amadoc Wounded His Own Pal and Shot and Killed the Peacemaker.

POLICE RESCUE THE SLAYER.

He and His Friend Had Gone to Guest's Wedding Feast to Kill a Guest, Who Escaped.

Angelina Gemmell's wedding night will always be one of horrible memory to her, for the marriage feast was broken up by two men who came to murder a third, and instead killed one who tried to act as peacemaker. The bride of a few hours saw this murder committed on the top floor of the three-story apartment house, No. 71 Adams street, Hoboken.

Giovanni Gusto, a well to do fruit dealer, and the pretty Angelina, who is just twenty-two years old, were married yesterday and last night held a wedding feast in the Adams street apartments. Gusto had hired up for their home, Antonio Sabbatelli, a wealthy produce dealer, who owned the house, was a guest at the feast. He lived with his wife on the floor below that of the young couple.

The wedding festival was at its height about 9 o'clock when there entered two unbidden guests, Vincenzo Borromeo, of No. 70 Mott street, and Antonio Amadoc, eighteen years old, of No. 81 Mulberry street, New York. They knew that Pasquale Ercole, a brother-in-law of Sabbatelli was at the feast, and came to kill him as the result of a grudge of long standing. Ercole saw them enter and ran downstairs to the apartments of his brother-in-law and hid. Borromeo and Amadoc in searching the Gusto apartments for him, created such an uproar that Sabbatelli besought them to keep quiet. There was a quarrel, and soon Sabbatelli, Borromeo and Amadoc were in the hall fighting hard. The bride and bridegroom and their guests saw the two men as they reached the first floor hall draw revolvers and begin shooting. Sabbatelli, as he ran to the street, returned the fire, sending two shots at Borromeo, who was shot twice in the arm by Amadoc, who mistook him for the peacemaker. Borromeo fell to the sidewalk as Sabbatelli dashed across the street and fell dead, shot through the heart by Amadoc. The murderer fled, pursued by Quist, his bride and the wedding guests. During the fusillade Heinrich Peters, of West Hoboken, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

Gusto, who was passing with his wife, was hit in the left leg with a shot from Amadoc's revolver. The murderer ran for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad yards, throwing his revolver in the yard of No. 63 Willow avenue, where it was found later. Amadoc was overtaken by the crowd. Policemen Peters and Diets rescued him, though they had to draw their revolvers to drive the crowd back. The police took Amadoc back to the house where Thomas Sabbatelli, son of the murdered man, identified him as the one who killed his father. The young man leaped at Amadoc's throat, and but for the policemen, who beat him back, would have strangled him. Sabbatelli's wife, who hysterics and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a critical state. Borromeo was also taken there, and will recover.

</